All the sound clips (from music, mp3, movies, tv shows, the rain, water, house, video games etc.) on this site are royalty-free. Mushroom Audio Maker is a sound editing tool that lets you add and/or remove sounds from videos. It is designed to do exactly what the name suggests, with an added twist of cutting and pasting sounds from videos, whether they are stills from a video or audio clips taken from a video. The interface is very easy to use and understand. First, you drag a clip from your hard drive or video camera, then the program will automatically tell you whether or not it is a good fit, and if so, you can simply drop it on the page. If you are planning to cut and paste a sound clip from a video, you need to make sure that your current video is being played on the PC that you are editing. If you have the PC with the video running on it, it will already be playing the video file as you open it, making it easy for you to cut and paste sounds. You can even add effects such as the built-in noise reduction, Equalizer and Auto Volume control. The program also lets you trim your sound clips, which is an added bonus.
