Mac Os X, Win XP, Win 7, Win Vista. 7.6.0.5 RarThe present invention relates to a data transmitting and receiving apparatus in a network such as the Internet for transmitting and receiving digital data, and more particularly to a technique suitable for transmitting and receiving digital data via the Internet while guaranteeing real-time data transmission. Many pieces of music such as sound tracks, sound effects and so on are managed using an audio record in a sound recording and reproduction field. Also, in a case where pieces of image data such as video images and so on are handled as audio data, a method of managing the audio data by encoding and representing the image data using audio data such as sound data and so on is used. These days, the Internet has been rapidly developed and many users use the Internet in their homes for various purposes. It is becoming possible to use the Internet in various manners, not only for the purpose of telecommunication. On the Internet, pieces of audio data and pieces of image data can be easily transmitted and received. For example, a digitized image such as a picture may be easily transmitted as audio data. In the case of a portion of the image data such as a still picture or a moving picture, data of the image may be compressed and encoded and, in the case of a moving picture, time compressed data, image data of short time period may be compressed and encoded by using MPEG. In the case of the audio data, the compressed data and the like may be generally converted into a data format from a wav format of a standard music CD or a data format from a sound CD. It is thought that, in the future, Internet based entertainment systems will be extensively used. In such Internet based entertainment systems, the electronic program data described above are stored in a storage medium such as a hard disc, and the electronic program data are transmitted and received using the d0c515b9f4
