is a screensaver that shows you a list of flowers and their description. As you select the flower you want to use, the image on screen is updated and if you install the screensaver, the images are stored in `/var/lib/screenpro.images/flowers/` Kennene Flowers Screensaver is free software Please send me bug reports so that I can fix them.

Your problem with the screensaver may also be related to a problem with your X

Window System. It might be that the screensaver does not accept mouse clicks, or the screensaver is just too heavy to run on your hardware. You can test your system by running the screensaver by itself, without any applications being started. To do this, press Ctrl-Alt-Del to stop the current applications, and then press Ctrl-Alt-Backspace to restart X. Try running kennene.screensaver.1 and compare the result with the result of running it in a normal, unmodified session. Note whether it reproduces the behaviour, and report it. It might be that your computer has gone through several OS changes since it was made. If you do not know how to solve this, please contact the owner of the computer, or contact your computer service provider. The program was written by me, Daniel Gansau

Kennene Flowers Screensaver [32|64bit]

This rather small screensaver displays several delicate flowers hanging in a perfect structure. This time it's about flowers and their beauty. It's named Kennene Flowers. Images were taken in the forests near Kiev and in Kazan, Russia. Flowers are very important for the nature. Their beauty attracts bees and butterflies and other insects, which feed on flowers and fruits. Just look at these flowers. In fact, it's hard to imagine life without flowers. However, they're not only that - they are food for the birds. Let's hope they find some more places of their favorite food - gardens! So you see that nature doesn't need screensavers like Kennene Flowers. It's enough to have flowers in real life. Even if we live in a city, we can decorate our homes with flowers from our balconies or windows. Your task: During the first 5 days of installation, there will be no warnings. The only thing you have to do is to confirm the install. If you want, you can cancel the trial by log off. Special thanks to: Dobran and Vitaly, for their help with the images.

KenneTheMorning Screensaver Description: The morning sun wakes up birds. Birds warble their welcome tune. The beams of sunlight gild the early morning sky. The birds chirp, in a soft beauty. The dew-drops hover over the lake's surface. The sparkling waters glint. The deer stand and watch the morning unfold. Soft blades of light filter through leaves at dawn. The dew drops hover over the lake surface. The sparkling waters glint. The deer stand and watch the morning unfold. Soft blades of light filter through leaves at dawn. It's time to take a trip to the forest. The sunlight illuminates soft dew drops. As the sun rises the birds begin to sing. As the sun rises the deer make their way to the stream to drink. Everyone is up and ready to enjoy the day.

Screensaver Almost every modern PC has at least one built-in sound chip. No matter if it's an AC97, HDA or AD1981B, every time your sound card is used, some sounds are played and some are recorded. However, it can be a bit frustrating, if you cannot control which sounds are playing and which are not. You might also want to cancel some of the unnecessary sounds or turn some on or off during a movie, for example.

In short, you might want to control your sound card sounds through Windows. A slight complication might come into play, when you need to cancel all sounds. Well, you can do this, at least for those sound cards, which are not even built into the chipset. Kennen Sound Controls and Card-Based Card Acoustic Cancell
