When someone does a good deed for you, what is the best time to say a word of thanks? If it is too soon, it is not appreciated, but if it is too late, it may seem insincere. A: When someone does a good deed for you, what is the best time to say a word of thanks? The best time to say a word of thanks is when they have done a good deed for you. I am grateful for the time you made the effort to help me. I am grateful that you allowed me to use your phone. I am grateful that you bought me a treat. I am grateful that you paid for dinner. But we say it at every opportunity because that's what we are used to doing. I am grateful that I had the opportunity to help you today. It is not an occasion to express thanks for a kind act done months earlier. I am grateful for the way you have helped me in the past.
