Atrial fibrillation is a common rhythm disturbance in clinical practice. It is associated with a substantial risk of morbidity and mortality, particularly due to cerebrovascular accident. There is also an increased risk of breast cancer associated with a history of atrial fibrillation, whereas earlier age of menopause may protect against its recurrence. The long-term consequences of atrial fibrillation can be improved by adequate treatment. All patients should be anticoagulated with long-term warfarin, and the possibility of thromboprophylaxis against recurrent stroke, transient ischaemic attack or pulmonary embolism should be considered. The choice between different anticoagulant regimes, in terms of target INR, dose and the need for long-term anticoagulation, will depend on individual risk factors and the presence of comorbidity. Transthoracic and transesophageal echocardiographic techniques are useful in detecting the underlying causes and the risk of thromboembolic disease in the atrial fibrillation patient. Where appropriate, catheter ablative procedures are a valuable non-pharmacological option in the management of atrial fibrillation. Surgery, with or without anticoagulation, is indicated for a significant proportion of patients with atrial fibrillation and contraindications to anticoagulation.Q: Nested dynamic foreign key in php query I am trying to define a nested foreign key as a column in one of my mysql tables. Here's what I've done, but it isn't working properly and I'm not sure what I'm doing wrong: TABLE1: ID | CODE | SOME_DATA TABLE2: ID | TABLE1_ID | CODE_X | SOME_DATA_X This is the query I want to execute: SELECT * FROM TABLE1 JOIN TABLE2 ON TABLE1.CODE = TABLE2.CODE_X WHERE id = 1001 ORDER BY TABLE1.SOME_DATA DESC; I have tried the following: ALTER TABLE table1 ADD TABLE1_ID INT(
